Promise of a New Enterprise.

Promise of a New Enterprise.

An Intelligencer reporter was given a few points yesterday relative to a prospective new industry for Martin's Ferry. The gentleman giving the information did not wish his name mentioned in connection with the matter at present, but would say that the matter was being quietly worked up and the manager of the enterprise would probably be in Martin's Ferry right after the holidays to look over matters. The enterprise would probably require five or six acres of ground for shops and sheds, and would employ about one hundred men. Fuller details will be given later if the enterprise is a go at Martin's Ferry. The works would be something entirely different from anything in this part of the Ohio Valley, and would doubtless grow in capacity.
